

Strategic Intent 2013-2015

---

What is the Deeble Institute?

Established in late 2011, the Deeble Institute for Health Policy Research is a collaboration between the Australian Healthcare and Hospitals Association and our seven Founding Partner universities:

- The Australian National University
- Griffith University
- La Trobe University
- Queensland University of Technology
- University of Canberra
- University of Western Australia
- University of Wollongong.

Our vision

To support the development of evidence-informed health policy and practice through partnerships with health policymakers, practitioners and researchers.

Our mission

To be a national leader in exchanging and translating knowledge for health policy and practice.

Strategic Objectives

The Deeble Institute's core objectives between 2013 and 2015 are to:

1. Bring policymakers, practitioners and researchers together to work collaboratively on:
  - identifying priority national health policy and practice concerns that require further development of an evidence base
  - conducting high-quality, independent research synthesis, and policy and practice-based research
  - ensuring research findings are translated into policy and practice.
2. Build capacity in the health sector for knowledge translation and exchange for health policy development.
3. Communicate the outcomes of our work widely and authoritatively and build collaborative networks nationally and internationally.
